

OUIMET RANKED WITH TRAVERS IN GOLF LIST

Pair Placed on Scratch, with Evans Standing Alone at One.

BYERS AND FOWNES MOVE UP TO "TWO'S"

This Year's Figures Constitute First Official Handicap of American Amateurs.

In the opinion of the executive committee of the United States Golf Association, it will take at least another season of competitive effort to determine who is the "daddy of them all" among the nation's leading amateurs. The official handicap list again places Francis Ouimet, of Woodland, and Jerome D. Travers, of Upper Montclair, on scratch, while Charles "Chick" Evans, the pride of Chicago, once more stands alone with an allowance of one stroke.

Beginning with this year, the governing body blossoms out with what is pleased to call a "handicap rating list." In other words, ability at match as well as at medal play is now taken into consideration; likewise past performance. This practically amounts to the first official handicap.

In giving out the list yesterday Howard F. Whitney, secretary of the United States Golf Association, stated that after the roster had been compiled a mail vote was taken among the members of the executive committee, and that the positions on the top were in accordance with the opinions of the majority of its members.

Changing the heading to "handicap rating list" gives the compilation more than usual significance. Heretofore there has been no attempt to formally rank the country's leading players, but with the changed designation it may be readily perceived that golf now has what lawn tennis has had for years—on official ranking list—except, of course, that golfers are considered in groups outside of the first few. It means that private ratings at the close of each season will not have the same authoritative atmosphere as heretofore.

Last year also Travers and Ouimet shared the scratch honors and Evans was alone at "one." Changes may be noted, however, in the classification of the "two" men.

John G. Anderson, 1913 runner-up for the national title, Walter J. Travis and Warren B. Wood were alone in that position. This year Eben M. Byers, of Allegheny, and W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, both former national champions, advanced from three to two, and placed on a par with Travis and Wood, while Anderson is relegated to the third group, with eleven others. J. B. Schlotman, of Detroit, was moved up to three from four. These are the more important alterations.

There were 227 names in the list issued a year ago and twenty-two other golfers were added early in July, bringing the total up to 249.

The new list contains 271 names, an increase of twenty-two over last summer. No golfer is eligible to compete for the national title unless rated, and last season will vanish within thirty days of the time the tournament begins.
